

OFFICIAL PRIMARY VOTE

ONLY CHANGE IS ON REPUBLICAN TICKET FOR CO. TREAS.

Complete Returns of the Official Vote for the Candidates at the Democratic Primary.

The counting of the official primary vote for the county ticket was furnished last Saturday afternoon and the only change was on the Republican ticket, Clarence C. Smith, of Mt. Joy township winning the Republican nomination for County Treasurer over J. C. Hoke. The computing of the returns for the borough, ward, and township tickets were finished this week. The complete returns of official vote for Democratic ticket follows:

DEATHS.

when 18 years of age took a position with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Two years later he entered the service of the Hanover Junction, Hanover and Gettysburg Railroad, now the Western Maryland, where he served faithfully and honorably for forty-three years. In 1890 he moved to Baltimore with his family where they resided for thirty years, returning to Hanover in 1919. At the time of his death he was conductor of the Hanover and York passenger train. Mr. Maurath enjoyed the distinction of being the second oldest employee in the Hagerstown Division of the Western Maryland in point of service at the time of his death, and leaves a good record as a railroad man. The funeral was on Thursday in Hanover.

Mrs. Lydia Ann Sheaffer, widow of Joseph Sheaffer, formerly of East Berlin, died Friday at her home in York, aged 86 years. She leaves three daughters, Ella and Jennie Sheaffer, and Mrs. John Wehler, and one son, Edw. C. Sheaffer, of York. Interment was made in Greenmount Cemetery, York.

Edward H. Guise died in York Springs on Thursday, aged 65 years, 11 months and 5 days. He had been a farmer until he retired three years ago, moving to York Springs. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Guise and is survived by his wife, who was Miss Ada C. Bream, one daughter and two sons, Mrs. James I. Sheaffer, of York Springs, Charles E. Guise, of Huntington township and Nelson R. Guise at home. Two brothers survive, Ezra Guise and John A. Guise, both of Huntington township. The funeral will be on Monday morning at 10.30 at Ground Oak Church by Rev. S. N. Mount, interment in adjoining Cemetery.

Charles William Wagner, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wagner of Gettysburg, died on Thursday, aged 5 months and 22 days. The funeral will be on Sunday.

STATUE OF WHITE SQUAW.

Rev. Father Will Whalen Announces the Dedication.

"Queen Mary Jemison, one of the real glories of Adams county, hath announced that she, using the prerogative of her sex, hath changed her mind and will not be unveiled till Saturday, Oct. 13, at 2 P. M., in Buchanan Valley. The mountaineers are busily preparing to entertain 'Our Mary's' guests. A well 40 feet deep has been sunk near the monument. The water is voted the sweetest in the whole valley, bubbling right out of the rocks. The rain-washed roads are being repaired by a corps of workmen. Noted speakers will be present at the solemn unveiling. The lady who is to remove the veil has not yet revealed her identity. The White Squaw will be given honors commensurate with her heroic spirit. 'A citizen, slightly befuddled, of your town, paid a recent visit to Buchanan Valley, and came home in a cold sweat and in an auto driven at

RICHARD LLOYD JONES SAYS LEADERSHIP

Senior classes in all the colleges and high schools are now on what might be called the home stretch of their academic careers. After their concluding those examinations and celebrations they face the world; they confront a world that needs men and women trained in mind and body; but they confront a world which needs leaders.

Every business enterprise, every political party in town, county, state or nation, every political and economic idea, every branch of scientific endeavor and every religious movement looks to a leader.

Many a student before he reaches his senior year has learned how to concentrate and apply his own mind; he has learned how to acquire; he has stored power in himself. But he may do all this and be a pathetic failure in the world. High class-room standing never made any man great. That which does make a man great is the power to give others power.

Just to think out an idea will never advance the idea. Not until you have thought out and then fought out the idea have you made a contribution to the world. Columbus could not prove in Spain that the world was round. To do this he had to take disbelievers with him and with them fight the vast seas.

Darwin thought out the idea of world creation and evolution as he observed the sluggish forms of lower life on the teeming banks of the Amazon. But he spent a decade to convince himself that he had found a truth, then he fought through a full and busy life to convince the world that the truth he found was of use to the world.

Resolute to do something, then find something to do. If it be something new make it of use to many. By so doing you take your place among the leaders of men. If it be something old and tried that you do, do it better than it was ever done before, and by so doing show others how best to do it. Then again you lead. Both your name and your labors will endure beyond those of temporal heroes, who triumph only in the selfish successes of the hour.

Translate your information into inspiration and aspiration. So equipped, go to it. DO and then you win.

breakneck speed. Near the Old Jesuit Mission and cemetery on the top of the hill, he saw a tall white-robed woman, very ghostly in the moonlight. He looked again, and there still stood the apparition, then his foot quickly sought the gas. He didn't know that Mary Jemison, the White Squaw, was standing on her own home ground, and had not yet removed her white veil, and made herself known to her thousands of admirers.

The Compiler has been chosen to print the book of Father Whalen entitled "The Red Lily of Buchanan Valley" telling the story of the White Squaw. It is a fine and no one will be able to fully appreciate the significance of the White Squaw standing on the old Buchanan Valley highway unless they have a copy of this interesting story by Father Whalen. The Compiler many years ago printed the first sketch of Mary Jemison's life and now this latest interpretation.

SIGNS GOOD AND EVIL

There are many superstitions connected with precious gems. Here are a few of them:

Moonstone is an aid to beauty and charm.

Sapphire guards against deceitful friends.

Olivines make the wearer witty and animated.

Jade will guard against bad luck and misfortune.

Turquoise assures self-possession and clear thinking.

Amethyst protects the wearer from slights or folly.

Small ears and a small mouth denote a horse of good breed.

A white star in the center of the forehead of a horse is considered a lucky sign.

Emeralds are a spur to ambition and promote the spirit of a leader.

Topaz banishes melancholy and imparts serenity and a contented mind.

A horse that habitually paws the ground is said to be digging his owner's grave.

Ruby wards off the dangers of rheumatism and gives the wearer a lively, charming manner.

Two small black spots located just above the hoof on the white stockinged left hind leg of a horse are an unlucky sign.

WITH THE SAGES

A loving heart is the truest wisdom.—Dickens.

Misery acquaints a man with strange bed-fellows.—Shakespeare.

Bats and conquerors must expect no mercy in misfortune.—Colton.

To be poor and seem to be poor is a certain way never to rise.—Goldsmith.

Unbecoming forwardness oftener proceeds from ignorance than impudence.

There is no ghost so difficult to lay as the ghost of an injury.—Alexander Smith.

He that doth public good for multitudes finds few are truly grateful.—Massinger.

To be good and disagreeable is high treason against the royalty of virtue.—H. More.

No one will dare maintain that it is better to do injustice than to bear it.—Aristotle.

The lust of gold, unfeeling and remorseless; the last corruption of degenerate man.—Johnson.

Mirth should be the embroidery of conversation, not the web; and wit the ornament of the mind, not the furniture.—Douglas Jerrold.

He who imitates evil always goes beyond the example that is set; he who imitates what is good always falls short.—Guicciardini.

WORDS OF WISE MEN

Education begins the gentleman, but reading, good company and reflection must finish him.

Great honors are great burdens, but most men think their shoulders broad enough to bear them.

What we call liberality is often but the vanity of giving, which we like more than what we give away.

Pleasure is a necessary reciprocal; no one feels it who does not at the same time give it. To be pleased one must please.

He alone is a man who can resist the genius of the age, the tone of fashion, with vigorous simplicity and modest courage.

All earthly delights are sweeter in expectation than enjoyment, but all spiritual pleasures more in fruition than expectation.

We are sometimes more inclined to hate one another for points on which we differ than to love one another for points on which we agree.

To be influenced by a passion for the same pursuits, and to have similar dislikes is the rational groundwork of lasting friendship.

AROUND THE WORLD

Turkish women are forbidden to dance in public.

Monuments to military heroes are unknown in China.

Ceylon has always been the chief locality for pearl fishing.

Mt. Katmai, in Alaska, is the largest active volcano in the world.

Lake Balaton, in Hungary, the greatest fresh water lake in Central Europe, seems to be drying up for no apparent reason.

"COLD IN THE HEAD"

Is an acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Those subject to frequent "colds" are generally in a "run down" condition.

HALE'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a treatment consisting of an Ointment, to be used locally, and a Tonic, which acts quickly through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, building up the System, and making you less liable to "colds."

WESTERN MARYLAND RY.

An Isolated People.

How much remains to be done before we shall have a complete knowledge of the inhabitants of our planet is indicated by the failure of an expedition from the American Museum of Natural History to get into communication with the Naskapi Indians of Labrador. The summer expedition was undertaken it was supposed that these natives could be reached by way of the west coast of Labrador, but it was found to be impossible. In winter they go to Nitchegoon, in the interior, 55 days' journey by canoe from Rupert's house on the Main river.

Gold-Thread Magic

By MARTHA WILLIAMS

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

There were made a picture against the silver trunk of a huge beech, sole survivor of a primeval forest. The turf at her feet was tussocky to raggedness, but she loved it better for that—the tussocks gave shelter to so many vagrant wild flowers, and garden strays—harebells, scentless violets, white, blue, and yellow; larkspur, sweet williams, even starveling mignonette and candytuft.

There were runaway June roses, too, in a thick clump on beyond, with a backing of stout blackberry briars. Gold-thread, whose countryside name is love vine, laced the thorny tangle richly. Vere had pulled a handful of the fine yellow filaments, and stood snipping them in pieces, saying under her breath:

"Love live! Love die!" Black mammy had taught her the charm when she was fifteen. She had practiced it, as she thought, in the strictest privacy, only to be discovered by Royal Dent, the object of her incantations. His shouted laugh had been cruel enough, but less so than the shamed sullenness of his eyes when her flaming confusion enlightened him.

He was two years older. They had been comrades half a year—pals. Evidently by his thought she had never sensed articulately what he had meant to her.

Sudden knowledge had been scathing as a lightning stroke. He had turned from her awkwardly, saying, dully: "Oh, I better be going. Aunt Margaret sent me to—ask if she can get you people to help out with the party—cups and spoons and plates and things, you know. I'll tell her yes, and that you'll come help with the flowers."

She had slept ill that night, thinking of what she must endure facing him again. But Fate kindly spared her that—Aunt Margaret made her gay good-bys from Royal—he had been suddenly called home—but was coming back at Christmas—she was not to forget him, and be sure to save him dances. And she had smiled beautifully.

In the night she had suddenly grown up. This mature self knew Royal would not come back—at least not for years. In truth he did not come—his father's slight illness had turned suddenly so serious that he had had to go far away, taking Royal with him.

Then nebulously she heard of him, prop and stay of a failing fortune—later of the father's death, the son's engagement to an heiress of the golden coast—after that silence—five full years of it.

They had been eventful years for Vere. She had found her voice, a magnificent one. Then, just as it was coming to full strength and charm, tricky Fate had hung into her lap a tidy fortune. It had ended her potential career—she had never craved distinction, but sang as birds sing, because inner music must come out.

Now, standing in the old spot, idly repeating the old charm, she wondered whether she had been wise to choose the high distinction of private station rather than the world acclaim. She had had lovers—shoals of them—one or two so fine she had considered them for perhaps a fortnight and ended by giving them the kindest of nays.

Not that she was romantically faithful to that girlish fancy, but that the scar of it seemed to bar her heart from again swelling at another voice, another touch.

If Royal had ever kissed her it would not have been so strange. She had nothing to remember but the shouted laugh, the sullen, shamed eyes—meager food, indeed, for a heart throughout a stretch of years.

He was coming in a very little while—hence her present employment. Fancifully she had told herself she could better show him thus her complete indifference to anything in the past. As a married man, he might be over so much more susceptible than the lad she remembered. If he came, bent on making amends for that old cruelty, there might arise a situation—unless she took great pains to avoid it.

Had the ten years changed him greatly? To her they had been wholly kind, robbing her of nothing, only changing her lithe, angularity into a singular grace of pose and motion. Yet—would they know each other if they met elsewhere? A faint amused smile hovered about her lips at the thought—it froze as a voice behind her said: "Am I speaking to Miss Hawthorn—or Vere?"

"That depends!" "Upon whom? Or what?" "Upon whom you seek?" airily, not lifting eyes from the gold-thread now almost exhausted.

"As to that—honestly, I can't say. I came to see Vere—but her supplanter will not let me find her." "Not yet," rather thickly—then, as she swung away the last yellow shred: "I want that, please. Don't believe I should have known you if you hadn't been playing the same game as when I saw you last."

"What a memory!"

Vere apostrophized space, then, quickly: "Come to the house. I want your judgment of several and sundry things there. I have such a passion for changing, and then so little confidence in the results—" "Of course you have daffodils all along your drive, and starbuds and geraniums," Royal interrupted. "Those were your two pet ambitions in the old time. Now that you're not only a rich lady but a person of distinction, I am certain you have achieved them."

"I have not," pretending to pout. "My lawn is as unflawed as ever my conscience. Out back there's a real riot of blooms. I ravage to my heart's content there."

"I see! Your predatory impulses have come to the surface." Royal laughed. "I felt them without knowing they were there. That was what made me always deadly afraid of you."

"Politeness is a fearful strain," Vere said reflectively.

Royal laughed, saying softly, "Say d—n—call me a liar right out—if you're thinking such things."

"What a mind reader you are!" Vere interrupted him. "You know—well—what awe of your lordly self I stood in—after the day you pulled me out of your saddle."

"You had no business in it—foot of a side," Royal countered, his chin going up.

"But I wanted to try it," Vere persisted. "And have been glad always of the trial. It has made and kept me a side-saddle fan—helped, of course, by your going away—it wouldn't have done at all to let you know you had any hand in it."

"Come along! I want to see how you have desecrated 'The Beeches,'" Royal said masterfully, clatching her arm.

She drew it away and half ran along the tussocks to the smooth grass, pausing there to say: "Shut your eyes—tight—till I give you leave to open them."

Silently he obeyed—walking beside her, guided by her light footfalls. Presently he was aware of a darkening overhead—at the same instant Vere cried: "Look!" pausing back of him so his vision might range unimpeded up, down, athwart, the green temple of ancient trees.

Royal bared his head to them, saying reverently: "You have kept the faith. All is better than even hope could paint it. Talk of changes—I see none. The place has always haunted me—now it will haunt me more than ever."

"I wonder—will your wife like it as well?" Vere said, half-wistfully.

Royal caught her hand and raised it to his lips, saying: "I am sure she will—for unless she is yourself, she will never be anybody at all."

WAS ONCE "MOTHERS' NIGHT"

Long Ago, the Closing Hours of the Twenty-Fifth of December Belonged to Her.

The oldest English name for Christmas is Moddra Nihit, or Mothers' Night. In the early days, when Saxon forefathers had just settled down in the country that was to be England, the day of December 25, was given up to games and feasting, but the night was dedicated to the special honor of mothers.

They occupied the seats of honor, and everyone brought them gifts. Sons and daughters who had gone out into the world strove to be at home on that one night in the year. A little later the name Yule was given to Christmas, and the rejoicings of the day were prolonged into the night, when men sang and told stories sitting around the cheerful blaze of the Yule log.

The old customs of Mothers' Night gradually died out, though they still survive in a few remote parts of the country. Its place has been taken to some extent by Mothering Sunday in the north of England. On that day everyone who can do so still makes a pilgrimage homeward and the mother receives the homage of her family.

Timing of the Nerves.

A curious instance of the care and minuteness with which the human body is now studied, in an effort better to understand its powers and functions, is furnished by a paper read at a meeting of the Royal Society in London on "The Rapidity of the Nervous Impulse in Tall and Short Individuals."

Even the difference in time required for a "nervous telegram" to traverse the bodies of different persons is regarded as a matter of scientific importance. A series of observations has shown that the length of the nerves does affect the velocity with which an impulse passes between the brain and the extremities, and consequently that more time is needed if the path is long than if it is short. It follows that a short man should feel a step on his corns quicker than a tall one, but the difference is so slight that the offender has no better chance of escape in one case than in the other.

Invalids of the Forest.

In the matter of longevity human beings cannot compete with trees, but according to mortality tables, human beings are more fortunate up to certain ages.

A forest at maturity contains about 5 per cent of the trees that started life there. The percentage of human beings living from ten to fifty is much greater than in the case of trees. About 95 per cent of trees die before they are eighty years old, while only 87 per cent of persons die before reaching that age.

RENEWED TESTIMONY.

No one in Gettysburg who suffers backache, headaches, or distressing urinary ills can afford to ignore this Gettysburg woman's twice-told story. It is confirmed testimony that no Gettysburg resident can doubt.

Miss Mary Dillman, 203 S. Washington St., says: "My back was very weak and hurt all the time. Backache bore down on me as if I had a great weight on my back. My kidneys were too frequent in action and when I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, I purchased some at the People's Drug Store. This remedy gave me fine relief and has never since failed to benefit me when it was necessary to use them."

The above statement was given February 15, 1916, and on April 11, 1921, Miss Dillman said: "Nothing could ever make me go back on Doan's Kidney Pills. This fine kidney medicine droye all symptoms of kidney trouble from me. Every once in awhile I take a few Doan's to be sure my kidneys are still in good shape."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy; get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Miss Dillman had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

HELPFUL HINTS

Quick Hanger—In an emergency a new hanger rolled up tight and tied in the center with a loop to hang up by makes a good substitute for a dress hanger.

Meat—Did you know that paper absorbs juice? Well, it does, therefore always remove any before putting your meat away.

Grease Spot—To remove a spot of grease from wallpaper. Rub the place with a piece of flannel dampened with alcohol.

Cooking Eggs—A spoonful of flour added to the grease in which eggs are to be fried will prevent them from sticking as well as breaking.

Eliminating Moths—If you have no moth balls, sprinkle your clothing with turpentine. The moths will not come near them.

Varnish Stain—A varnish or shellac spot on clothing may be removed with alcohol.

To Sour Milk—If desirous of souring some milk just add a few drops of vinegar.

Match Scratches—Disfiguring marks on woodwork, made by scratching matches, will disappear if rubbed with a cut lemon.

Dyeing—Next time when dyeing with a cake variety of dye, use a soap shaker as sieve. It keeps undissolved particles of dye from spotting the clothes. Saves time and protects the hands from dye and hot water.

Cleaning Parchment Lamp Shades—If one wishes to clean their parchment lamp shades take any good polishing cream and put it in a soft cloth. Rub a small part of the shade and then rub off with a moist cloth. Repeat this until the shade has been gone over. You will find that your shade remains clean for a long while.

Hot Tea or Coffee Stains—Soak the stained fabric in cold water. Let it remain about twenty minutes, then wring out and pour a few drops of glycerine on each stain. After it has stood several hours wash well with cold water and soap. The stain will disappear.

WEDDINGS

York, were married on Aug. 31, by Rev. Peter Livingston.

Dean — Warner. — Miss Nellie Blanche Warner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Warner, of West street, and Harry Joseph Dean, of Alexandria, Va., were united in marriage on Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the Gettysburg Presbyterian Church.

Rev. William Childs Robinson, pastor, officiated. A reception for the newlyweds was held in the church parlor following the ceremony.

Railroad Change of Time.
Upon the termination of daylight saving time the Philadelphia and Reading Railway will put in effect at 12:01 A. M. Sunday, September 30th, a general change of time. This change will affect the entire system including the New York, Newton, New Hope, Bethlehem, Norristown, Lebanon Valley, Gettysburg and Harrisburg, and P. H. & P. Branches, the Shamokin Division, Wilmington & Columbia Division, Reading Division, and the Atlantic Railroad.

When this change of time becomes effective all the passenger trains which are now running one hour earlier than they were prior to the adoption of daylight saving time, will go back to their former schedule. Certain other changes will be made, also, for operating reasons. Time tables showing the new schedules will be in the hands of agents for distribution on Saturday.

South Mountain Fair.
The South Mountain Fair was a huge success on Tuesday and Wednesday. The crowds were large and left well pleased. The rain did little harm to the attendance. The exhibits were of the finest and best. In the horse class, there were 22 entries, 62 of the dairy farm cattle, 225 thoroughbred hogs, over 500 in the poultry division. There were 200 individual exhibits of apples and other fruits were on display. Big sections were devoted to grains and vegetables. The display of cake, bread, canned goods, jellies, preserves, pickled goods, and dried fruits was simply wonderful. The parade morning and afternoon of the live stock was a hit. Loysville Orphans' Home Band, Biglerville and Gettysburg Bands furnished the music and nothing was left undone to make the Fair an unqualified success. To hundreds of exhibitors went ribbons.

ARENDSVILLE.
Rev. T. C. Hesson will hold holy communion service in the Reformed Church in this place on Sunday morning the 30th inst., at 10 o'clock.

The large crop of peaches and apples that are now being shipped will bring a large amount of money here, and the automobile agents will be on hand to sell new cars.

Cutting off corn has begun and the crop is a large one in this locality.

The South Mountain Fair held here on the 25th and 26th inst. was largely attended and the exhibits were good. The Boys' Band from Loysville was here to furnish music for the fair.

Owing to so many automobile accidents the Annie M. Warner Hospital at Gettysburg is a busy place.

Dr. Wm. Oyler, who spent a week here among relatives, returned to his home in New York City.
